

Early 19th Century Bidjar no. 9085

Description

An early 19th-late 18th century antique Persian Bidjar carpet. The culmination of a centuries-old weaving tradition, the finest Bidjar antique rugs woven late 19th century or before are grand works of refined art, yet they possess tribal elements in their design and coloration which are not found in any other city rugs. They are highly respected by collectors and rug enthusiasts for their uniqueness, the strength of construction, and great decorative impact. They are commonly compatible with a wide range of traditional and contemporary decors.
